- The four stories on the circles came from the October 1994 Friend Magazine.

I CAN BE A PEACEMAKER BY....

What would you do if your father or mother asked you, privately and quietly, to be a peacemaker for twenty-four hours? That is what recently happened to several children. Here is what each told about being a peacemaker:

"I helped my sister with half her work. She was surprised. She said thank you. I stopped a fight at school. I told them to stop fighting and be nice."
– CHRISTIAN, AGE 6

"When my brothers were fighting over who would be first at doing something, I helped them by saying they both could be first. Because I knew I was the peacemaker, I told them in a soft voice instead of yelling at them. It felt good."
– JAMIE, AGE 8

"Being a peacemaker is making other people be happy and stop fighting. I wish we'd do this more often because every time I wanted to be mean, I thought about what Jesus would do."
– JEFFREY, AGE 7

"At recess, one of the boys suggested that we choose up teams and have a fight. I told them not to fight. Only one boy listened to me. We walked away while the others fought. Later they had to go to the principal's office. It felt good to be a peacemaker. I want to do it longer than twenty-four hours. Could we do it for a week?"
– CRAIG, AGE 8

Cut out all four circles and mount them on the lesson card. Read each story and on the back of the card, write how you will be a peacemaker for the next twenty-four hours.

I CAN BE A PEACEMAKER BY....

What would you do if your father or mother asked you, privately and quietly, to be a peacemaker for twenty-four hours? That is what recently happened to several children. Here is what each told about being a peacemaker:

"I helped my sister with half her work. She was surprised. She said thank you. I stopped a fight at school. I told them to stop fighting and be nice."
– CHRISTIAN, AGE 6

"When my brothers were fighting over who would be first at doing something, I helped them by saying they both could be first. Because I knew I was the peacemaker, I told them in a soft voice instead of yelling at them. It felt good."
– JAMIE, AGE 8

"Being a peacemaker is making other people be happy and stop fighting. I wish we'd do this more often because every time I wanted to be mean, I thought about what Jesus would do."
– JEFFREY, AGE 7

"At recess, one of the boys suggested that we choose up teams and have a fight. I told them not to fight. Only one boy listened to me. We walked away while the others fought. Later they had to go to the principal's office. It felt good to be a peacemaker. I want to do it longer than twenty-four hours. Could we do it for a week?"
– CRAIG, AGE 8

Cut out all four circles and mount them on the lesson card. Read each story and on the back of the card, write how you will be a peacemaker for the next twenty-four hours.