

- The stories and information from these cards came from the April 2011 Friend Magazine.

{ DARE } dare to be true

Dare means to have the courage to do something. When you are tempted to do something you know you shouldn't, remember to have the courage to stand up for what is right. These children had that courage in tough situations:

- * One day at school, a boy at my table brought a bad magazine to class. He kept showing it to other boys at my table. It made me feel sad. I asked him if he could please put away the magazine, and he did. It took a lot of courage for me to say something, but I'm glad I did. - Melissa M., age 9, Mexico
- * One time, two friends of mine were swearing. I told them not to say those words. They quit swearing, and I haven't heard them say bad words again. I am proud that I had the courage to tell them not to say bad words. - Connor M., age 8, Utah

Challenges:

- 1 - On the back of this card, draw a picture of you having courage in a difficult situation.
- 2 - Before going to bed each night this week, pray specifically that you will have the courage to choose the right the next day. Each night you pray for this purpose, color in a CTR shield.

{ DARE } dare to be true

Dare means to have the courage to do something. When you are tempted to do something you know you shouldn't, remember to have the courage to stand up for what is right. These children had that courage in tough situations:

- * One day at school, a boy at my table brought a bad magazine to class. He kept showing it to other boys at my table. It made me feel sad. I asked him if he could please put away the magazine, and he did. It took a lot of courage for me to say something, but I'm glad I did. - Melissa M., age 9, Mexico
- * One time, two friends of mine were swearing. I told them not to say those words. They quit swearing, and I haven't heard them say bad words again. I am proud that I had the courage to tell them not to say bad words. - Connor M., age 8, Utah

Challenges:

- 1 - On the back of this card, draw a picture of you having courage in a difficult situation.
- 2 - Before going to bed each night this week, pray specifically that you will have the courage to choose the right the next day. Each night you pray for this purpose, color in a CTR shield.

{ DARE } dare to be true

Dare means to have the courage to do something. When you are tempted to do something you know you shouldn't, remember to have the courage to stand up for what is right. These children had that courage in tough situations:

- * One day at school, a boy at my table brought a bad magazine to class. He kept showing it to other boys at my table. It made me feel sad. I asked him if he could please put away the magazine, and he did. It took a lot of courage for me to say something, but I'm glad I did. - Melissa M., age 9, Mexico
- * One time, two friends of mine were swearing. I told them not to say those words. They quit swearing, and I haven't heard them say bad words again. I am proud that I had the courage to tell them not to say bad words. - Connor M., age 8, Utah

Challenges:

- 1 - On the back of this card, draw a picture of you having courage in a difficult situation.
- 2 - Before going to bed each night this week, pray specifically that you will have the courage to choose the right the next day. Each night you pray for this purpose, color in a CTR shield.

{ DARE } dare to be true

Dare means to have the courage to do something. When you are tempted to do something you know you shouldn't, remember to have the courage to stand up for what is right. These children had that courage in tough situations:

- * One day at school, a boy at my table brought a bad magazine to class. He kept showing it to other boys at my table. It made me feel sad. I asked him if he could please put away the magazine, and he did. It took a lot of courage for me to say something, but I'm glad I did. - Melissa M., age 9, Mexico
- * One time, two friends of mine were swearing. I told them not to say those words. They quit swearing, and I haven't heard them say bad words again. I am proud that I had the courage to tell them not to say bad words. - Connor M., age 8, Utah

Challenges:

- 1 - On the back of this card, draw a picture of you having courage in a difficult situation.
- 2 - Before going to bed each night this week, pray specifically that you will have the courage to choose the right the next day. Each night you pray for this purpose, color in a CTR shield.

