

These are a rough outline. I just wanted to give some ideas and then hopefully the YW can tweak it a bit:

Skit for Lucky Charms

New beehive finds a torch necklace in her box of "Lucky Charms", wears it to school and shows off to her friends. One of them shows that she already has her YW medallion and proceeds to tell her how she can get her lucky charm. She'll explain that she has to eat all of the oat pieces as she passes off her value experiences. Then when she eats a marshmallow, say like the heart, then she needs to do a 10 hour project for good works. (Pot of gold could be individual worth, I'll think of other marshmallow connections later.)

The video could then show her periodically eating her cereal and talking with a parent or friend about the most recent value experience or project she has done. Then at the end she could get another box of Charms and it will have her medallion in it! Yeah!

I have a cute leprechaun hat if we want to think of some way to incorporate a leprechaun.

Skit for Skittles

There could be a person conducting a taste test. People will walk by and they have to try a new Skittle YW Value flavor. They will taste one and say something like, "Wow, that one really has a lot of faith. It makes me want to ..." or "This one must be divine nature because I can really get the feeling that I am a daughter of God as I taste it." After a few people have taste tested the new Skittle flavors, the sponsor can get on and say that each YW should "Seek the Values" (instead of Taste the Rainbow) because it will help them Strengthen home and family, make and keep sacred covenants, etc. I think it would be funny at the end to have a group of YW whisper Seek the Values, like on the commercials how they say taste the rainbow.