

It's a Wednesday evening. The telephone rings. "Hi! This is Norman Nonmormon. Would you be interested in a movie with me Friday night?" I say: "I'm sorry, Norman. I'd like to, but I think I'd better stick to dating guys who are members of the same church that I am. It's really the best way to have no hurt feelings later on. Thanks, anyway. It's sweet of you to ask. Hey, maybe you'd like to meet some of us—we're really a neat group. Move ahead 2 spaces for being honest and letting him know your standards.	It's a Wednesday evening. The telephone rings. "Hi! This is Norman Nonmormon. Would you be interested in a movie with me Friday night?" I say "Hey, that sounds fun. What time will we go?" Move back 1 space for dating non-members.	It's a Wednesday evening. The telephone rings. "Hi! This is Norman Nonmormon. Would you be interested in a movie with me Friday night?" I say: No, I'm sorry, Norman, but I have to trap flies that night." Move back 2 spaces for lying.
Normon Nonmormon asks you out on a date again, it just happens to be the same night as the ward carnival. Instead of saying no you invite Normon to come with you and your family to the activity. He loves it and agrees to come again. Move ahead 3 spaces for introducing someone to the church.	You get asked to your first Homecoming dance. You find the most beautiful gown. Its ok it doesn't have straps because none of the other girls wear modest dresses either, it even brings out the blue in your eyes. Move back 2 spaces for being immodest on a date.	You get asked to your first Homecoming dance. You are so excited and want to find the perfect dress. You shop around and can only seem to find immodest dresses. Luckily your young women's leader is great at sewing. You find a fabric that matches and put your own sleeves in. You are the most stunning (and modest) girl at the dance. Move ahead 2 spaces for being modest and appropriate!
You turn 16 in 3 months but the Junior Prom is in 2 months. One day you find a note in your locker from Phillip asking you to the dance. Not very many Sophmores get asked to the Prom and you turn just 1 month after the dance. You rationalize that it is ok to go... plus he's cute!!! Move back 1 space for dating before you are 16/	You have a hot date with the Junior Class president. He picks you up at your house, and drive to his house. His parents seem very nice and welcome me warmly to their home. Then they excuse themselves. They are going out and don't expect to be back until late. You didn't count on this. You tell him that you don't feel comfortable being alone at his house and suggest going to the dollar movies instead. Move ahead 3 spaces for standing up for what you know is right.	You get picked up on your first date with an LDS boy that you haven't met before (blind date). The only thing you know about the date is that you are going to see a movie. When you get there he buys ticket for the newest box office hit that is rated R. You are too embarrassed to say anything about it. You barely know him and don't want to seem rude, so you go watch the movie anyway. Move back 2 spaces for not sticking up for what you know is right.

You forget to ask Kevin what you are going to be doing on your date. Last time you went out to a fancy restaurant so you wear your cute skirt and high heels. When you arrive at the mountains to hike the Y you realize you dressed wrong. Why didn't you ask him before hand?!?! Move back 1 space for forgetting to ask what you will be doing.	You have had an amazing date with Nick. At the end of the date he walks you up to the doorstep. You know your parents are still up and you invite him in. This not only diffuses the awkwardness of saying good-bye on the doorstep, it also gives you a chance to thank your date for taking you out. Move ahead 3 spaces for making things not awkward.	After a really nice time on your first date with Nathan. He walks you up to the door. You tell him what a great time you had and then you realize he is going in for the kiss. You hadn't really thought about what you would do in this type of situation and so you just let him kiss you. What kind of message did you just send? Were you true to your feelings? Move back 2 spaces for not thinking ahead.
You turn 16 in 1 month. Jeff, your best friend asks you to go with him to the Winter Ball. You let him know that you have already set your standards to wait until you are 16 and would love to go out with him after that. He respects your decision and takes you out the day after you turn 16!!!! Move ahead 2 spaces for for waiting until you are 16.	You know that Jason has a crush on you. He is a member of the church but you have seen him smoking across the street from the school sometimes. He asks you out on a date. You let him know that your have standards set on that you will only date guys that are living worthily to some day serve a mission and take you to the temple. Move ahead 3 spaces for keeping your standards high.	Bryan has asked you out the past five weekend nights. You REALLY like him. When Jason asks you out for next weekend you tell him "no"... you are only interested in dating Bryan. Move back 2 spaces for steady dating.
Bryan has asked you out for the past three weekends. You really do like him, but you don't want to get too serious. This weekend you plan a girls night out for just you and your girls, and to take a little break. Move ahead 2 spaces for not steady dating.	After Tyler asks you out and you accept, you ask him what you will be doing. "Well I think that I will take you up to the mountains for a pic-nic" he says. You feel uncomfortable about being somewhere alone with him so you ask if you can invite your friend and her date. He agrees and you have a great time! Move ahead 2 spaces for dating in groups.	When Joe asks you to steady date him after 3 weeks of knowing him you say "sure". No one else asks me out anyway you think. Move back 2 spaces for steady dating.
